turn, the target company was required to inform the stock exchanges where it is listed by May 20, 1997. In terms of regulation 8 of the Regulations persons holding more than 15% and promoters or persons in control are required to make annual disclosure of their holdings as on 31st March every year to the target company within 21 days from the financial year ending 31st March as well as the record date of the company for the purpose of dividend declaration. In turn, the target company is required to make the disclosure to the stock exchanges where it is listed within 30 days form the financial year ending 31st March as well as the record date of the company for the purpose of dividend declaration.

Many of the listed companies and/or their promoters/shareholders have either not complied at all or have complied with the said requirements after expiry of the time specified in the Regulations either on account of oversight or lack of knowledge. Such non-compliance attracts monetary penalty and prosecution under SEBI Act. As the said proceedings involved considerable time and very nominal penalty on conviction, the Securities & Exchange Board of India (SEBI) introduced a "SEBI Regularisation Scheme, 2002" to enable companies and specified persons to regularise non-compliance with the disclosure requirements under the Regulations, by paying a reduced amount.

(c) After the expiry of the scheme, SEBI may initiate appropriate action against defaulting persons and companies who have not regularised non-compliance.
